

2010

Golden Chariot train (Karnataka State owned Critical Infrastructure) conducts Crisis Management Workshop with Haselfre.

September 07, 2010

The Golden Chariot train conducts critical crisis management workshop for understanding the elements of an overall crisis management plan with Haselfre.

Bangalore, India: The Golden Chariot train along with Haselfre conducted a one day workshop for the management and Government officials to give an overview of the crisis management policy for Karnataka State Owned tourism luxury train.

The first of a kind workshop conducted in India, represents yet another success for the Golden Chariot Train's operations within the Government to help it develop the state's tourism industry through a safe and effective manner. This includes proactive measures for managing crisis before it occurs, disaster recovery should the crisis happen and smooth business continuity in operations. The workshop was conducted by Haselfre, the consultants who crafted the Crisis Management Policy for the Golden Chariot. "This is another landmark moment for the Golden Chariot. We are eager to offer services to the Government that creates effective and efficient delivery of safe and secure critical infrastructure for citizens and tourists alike," said Mr. Vinay Luthra, MD, KSTDC.

About The Golden Chariot Train

Named after the famous Stone Chariot in Hampi, a World Heritage Site in South India, The Golden Chariot conveys you in luxurious comfort on voyages through time and exotic South Indian locales. On these journeys, it unravels for you both eras hidden behind time's veil, and the splendors of the present day. Come aboard, on a journey filled with moments worth cherishing for a lifetime.

The Golden Chariot offers you two memorable itineraries: Pride of the South and Southern Splendor.

For more information about the Golden Chariot, please visit www.goldenchariot.org

For more information about Haselfrë, please visit www.haselfre.com